Wallingford Economic Development Commission Topic on Local Cable Show Preview

This week on the Wallingford Government Access Television (WGTV) Preview program, members of the Economic Development Commission's (EDC) Planning & Zoning Liaison Committee, discuss their work with businesses and the Town's Planning and Zoning Commission.

Jim Wolfe begins, "We work with the Planning & Zoning Commission in our effort to support businesses through the process of relocating into or expanding in Wallingford. In addition to this assistance, we are involved in deliberations about Planning & Zoning regulations that apply to our industrial and commercial zones."

"An example of this," offers Joe Mirra, "is the work that is being done on the I-5 zoning regulations. The Planning & Zoning Commission is very conscientious about the well being of our community both now and in the future, a concern shared by the EDC. This zone ultimately is very important to the Town's Grand List and employment opportunities."

"Working with the Planning & Zoning Commission showcases the high level of cooperation that exists in our local government, its boards, commissions and departments. This bodes well for economic development," added Jim Wolfe, "and makes Wallingford an attractive site for businesses."

The EDC Liaison Committee segment on the June edition of Preview is accompanied by interviews with William Viola, Director of the Wallingford Senior Center, and Paul Flinter, Director of Wallingford Adult Education.

The program will be telecast as follows:
